Q. Which is the oldest building in the city of Boston?

V.B., Boston

A. As with most superlatives, there is some disagreement about this one. Some reference guides to the city call the Paul Revere House in the North End the oldest surviving building in Boston. But according to Lori Barnet, administrative assistant at the Boston Landmarks Commission, the oldest is the James Blake House, built around 1650. The current address for that frame dwelling is 1735 Columbia Road in Dorchester. • home of Governor Increase Sumner.

Illus. ext - Winsor: Memorial history of Boston vol 2 p. 343.

Boston. Houses. Auchmuty House
Washington & Cliff Sts.

Built by Judge Auchmuty c. 1756. When the British evacuated he removed to Halifax & the property was confiscated to the State. Gov. Sumner lived in this house & died there

The First Baptist Society of Roxbury was gathered in this house & here Rev. Dr. Sharp preached the first sermon.

During the Civil War all the work of the Roxbury Sanitary Society was collected in this house & sent to the general office. It later became residence of C. G. Bradford. Demolished in 1889.

Boston. Houses. Governor Bates Mansion.

1 Monmouth Square, East Boston. Erected in 1856 in the Italianate style, it is a fine example of this style. The building was the home of Governor Bates for several years and also the Strong Hospital.

In April 1987 a group of East Boston residents became concerned about the removal of the ornamental details as the building was being prepared for siding installation. Residents requested assistance from the Boston Preservation Alliance in researching the architectural and historical significance of the property.

Residents then submitted a landmark petition to the Boston Landmarks Commission. A stop work order was issued by the BLC until the landmark petition could be acted upon.

Q. Which is the oldest building in the city of Boston?

V.B., Boston

A. As with most superlatives, there is some disagreement about this one. Some reference guides to the city call the Paul Revere House in the North End the oldest surviving building in Boston. But according to Lori Barnet, administrative assistant at the Boston Landmarks Commission, the oldest is the James Blake House, built around 1650. The current address for that frame dwelling is 1735 Columbia Road in Dorchester. •

Q. What is the Blake House on Columbia Road in Dorchester? Is it open to visitors? – G.G., Boston

A. Preserved by the Dorchester Historical Society, the James Blake House once was described by the Boston Landmarks Commission as the "oldest surviving building" in the city. Sources we checked indicate the Blake House was built in 1648, more than a quarter-century before the Paul Revere House – its chief competition for the title – was completed in the North End. The dispute aside, the Blake House has four rooms and an attic and hand-hewn cross beams. It can be viewed by appointment by contacting society president Anthony Sammarco at 195 Boston St., Dorchester, MA 02125.
